Jump start and training programmes

Are you looking to assess or utilise the latest Microsoft® technology?

Embracing the latest technology can be tough. It's often difficult to understand the benefits and evaluate how a new piece of technology can be applied to best fit your needs.

Dot Net has teamed up with InnerWorkings to offer a Microsoft® Silverlight™ enablement programme. This self-paced programme will allow you to understand and evaluate this important new piece of technology. The approach can vary but includes drills integrated within Visual Studio and a week-long boot camp with some of Dot Net's leading developers.

Mix07 SPECIAL OFFER – Free limited access to the InnerWorkings drills to let you test drive Microsoft® Silverlight™.

Software development quality assurance programmes

Are you developing software in-house?

Developing software in-house can often be cost effective, but it's sometimes a problem to ensure developers are fluent in the latest technologies. You also may need support for your development department to fulfill corporate governance requirements.

Dot Net can help through its quality assurance programmes. By using this programme you can have access to experts in the latest technology to design and mentor your developers through their application development. This ensures adherence to Microsoft® best practices and provides SOX compliance by having knowledge of your system, available to you on call, from an external company you can trust.

Business systems consulting and development

An immovable deadline and a lack of resources to deliver on it?

Sometimes it's easiest to hand over responsibility for delivery of business critical applications to a trusted partner. We will work hand-in-hand with your business units to understand their requirements and deliver on time.

Using agile methodologies we work towards delivering working software as quickly as possible. By involving users from the very beginning through an iterative process we are able to deliver software which is exactly to customer requirements. Having tailored software helps you deliver a people ready business.
